ABOUT THIS WINERY

When Peter Logan establish Logan winery, it was against opinions and establishment. He choose the unfamiliar NSW Central Ranges as his base, planted Tempranillo, made Pinot Gris when few did, made Gewürztraminer (people still don't), created whimsical labels and stories, fermented white grapes on their skins, used large barrel oak, wild yeasts, and now sell wine in kegs! Success story that has been going on for 24 years now.

TASTING NOTES

The 2021 Clementine de la mer is a little cloudy like the ocean with a pale yellow gold colour. It has bright aromas of grapefruit, passionfruit, rose, poached quince and nashi pear with white peach, orange peel and the salty tang of sea spray on the palate.

PRODUCT NOTES

The unique combination of Semillon, Sauvignon Blanc, Riesling and Gewürztraminer - all skin fermented - create the same refreshing experience.
